C. V. Broadley, Official at CIA

Charles Vincent Broadley, a senior security official of the Central Intelligence Agency, died yesterday at Suburban Hospital after a brief illness. He was 58.

Mr. Broadley was born in Salem, Mass., and attended Governor Dummer Academy in his native state before entering the United States Naval Academy in 1921. He was graduated from there in 1925.

After serving with the Navy for two years, he was placed on in-

Mr. Broadley active duty status. Prior to World War II, he was associated with the American Steel Foundries Corp., the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. and Fidelity and Casualty Insurance companies in New York and New Jersey.

He also served as engineer and departmental manager for the Marsh and McLennan Insurance Brokers of New York.

Recalled to active duty by the Navy in 1942, he served with the Office of Naval Intelligence until 1946. Following the war, he worked for the War Assets Administration from 1946 to 1947, when he joined the Central Intelligence Agency.

He is survived by his wife, Margaret, of the home address, 5442 Broad Branch rd., nw., and two daughters, Barbara Beinhocker of Cambridge, Mass., and Deborah Gale of Philadelphia.
